

INTUITION

There is a point in many of our lives where we must learn to trust our own intuitive understandings about ourselves rather than rely on the input of others. No matter how helpful the perspective of others, learning to live from the heart and live the truest expression of our soul's work/journey requires that we reclaim the power of our own knowing. We must look inside for our own answers, find our own truths.